With the current pace of technological change, businesses require systems that meet both today and tomorrow's needs.

Information Technology firm Streffco Consultants addresses this directly by staying flexible and adapting to technological change. Their consultants' experience ranges from mainframes to current e-business strategies.

Company founder Randal Streff says, "We use our experience and flexibility to serve our clients needs. This allows us to stay abreast of technology and focus on all of a client's needs, not just individual projects. From this broader perspective, we can choose the best solutions to help our clients grow."

Streffco Consultants provides a complete information technology solution for their clients across all aspects of the Software Development Lifecycle and System Lifecycle.

Their consultants can work on a project basis, become full-time employees or augment current staff. Streffco can provide project management, requirements and business analysis, systems architecture, custom development, system testing, technical writing and training. They are experienced in mainframe and midrange systems, client server, Web-based and e-commerce systems. Always looking into emerging arenas and following clients' needs and requests, the company is expanding further into technical fields and its presence in the Healthcare industry and telecommunications arena.

Streffco has a wealth of experience with Fortune 500 clients, state and federal agencies and their associated business initiatives and process. This enables Streffco to successfully implement IT and Business solutions for our clients.

Since Randal Streff founded Streffco Consultants in the early 1980s, the company's mission of providing highly skilled candidates to companies throughout the nation has made it a competitive, long-lasting force in the industry.

Streff's personal experience in information technology and management coupled with the company's highly skilled Employees give Streffco Consultants the ability to focus on providing the business community with the benefits of a technology company. Revenues generated are used to help the businesses grow.

Streffco Consultant's trademark of having a get-the-job-done philosophy, coupled with its goal of finding ways to adapt existing technology to address new challenges have helped it grow to serve new industries while finding ways to focus technologies in such a way as to benefit businesses and communities.

Founder Randal Streff serves his clients by growing his consultants' experience and leveraging industry advances, making this another record year.

Streffco's high level of repeat and long-term customers results primarily from the company's dedication to a distinct group of clients.

Streffco Consultants can join with a client's team or can take over the process, freeing clients to concentrate on running their businesses while the solution is being developed. When starting a new project, Streffco Consultants takes the time to thoroughly learn the industry and business to quickly implement the best long-term solution.
